Veteran Pays It Forward with Thanks to New Beginnings

After serving as a Sergeant in the United States Army, Sonya G. returned to her home town in Santa Barbara County. A single mother raising three children ranging from toddler to teenager, Sonya works part time, but unfortunately was unable to maintain stable housing for her family. Sonya and her children were forced to reside in a garage for about a year with several others, unable to find a unit they could afford. After obtaining a Veterans Affairs Supportive Housing (VASH) voucher, Sonya’s VASH case manager referred her to New Beginnings’ Supportive Services for Veteran Families (SSVF) program. They assisted with her security deposit for an apartment she had identified.

When the veteran and SSVF case manager spoke regarding her case, Sonya expressed concerns that the apartment she had found lacked appliances, most importantly a refrigerator. Sonya was unsure if she wanted to move into a situation where she would be unable to keep food from spoiling for her three children, and she had no other resources to secure a refrigerator on her own.

Not wanting the family to lose the unit, Sonya’s case manager immediately began to network with local agencies. The case manager obtained a donated refrigerator from the Santa Maria Elks Lodge, an organization that often has various household items available for veterans in need.

After moving in, Sonya reached out to New Beginnings’ SSVF program to express her thanks for the program assistance and quick and resourceful response of the case manager. She shared that her children participate yearly in the Kiwanis Aktion Club Fashion Show of Santa Maria, and in fact, had won for best costume the last three years. The winner of this event, put on by the Kiwanis Aktion Club – a local organization that helps provide support for children and adults with intellectual disabilities – chooses a non-profit to receive a $1000 donation as a way to give back to the community. This year, Sonya and her children selected New Beginnings to receive the generous donation... should they win.

“Alice in Wonderland” was the theme for the 2018 fashion show. Sonya purchased all the needed costume items and props from local thrift stores in Santa Maria, and she hand crafted each costume for her three children – as Alice, the Mad Hatter and the White Rabbit. The outcome was astonishing! Her children looked as if they were transported straight from the movie. Her creativity and hard work earned her family the first place prize and the opportunity to give back to New Beginnings.

Stories like Sonya’s demonstrate the value and strength of our community connections and creative solutions in assisting local veterans to obtain and maintain housing stability – the foundation of the SSVF program. Thank you Sonya, for your service, creativity, determination and generous gift to New Beginnings!

Responding with Capacitar

Immediately following the Thomas Fire and debris flow, New Beginnings offered free, confidential counseling space to therapists whose offices were impacted by the disasters.

In addition, one of our Intern Counselors, Ciara Murray-Young, liaised with All Saints-By-The-Sea Episcopal Church and Capacitar International to bring trainers to Montecito to serve those suffering in the aftermath of the fire and debris flow. Capacitar, a Californian-based international organization, teaches holistic wellness practices to help people cope with trauma and stress, and understand how this stress effects our body, mind and emotions. All Saints-By-the-Sea hosted several workshops in February and March, introducing these Capacitar practices to complement existing community and mental health resources. Feedback from workshop attendees was very positive.

LifeSkills Program Adopts Aware Parenting

Our Clinical Director, Dr. Crystal Ramirez, attended a half-day training with Dr. Aletha Solter this spring to facilitate the introduction of new material into New Beginnings’ Life Skills Parenting Education Program. This program teaches critical hands-on parenting skills, mindfulness strategies, and overall life skills to more than 100 low-income families each year who need practical tools to establish and maintain stability in their home environments.

For more than fifteen years, this program has been offered at no cost through community centers and non-profit organizations that serve at-risk youth and low-income families.

Aletha Solter, Ph.D. is a Swiss-American developmental psychologist, international speaker, consultant, and author of five books. She founded The Aware Parenting Institute and has been helping parents and professionals all over the world care for babies and children. Dr. Solter’s books are The Aware Baby, Cooperative and Connected (a revised edition of Helping Young Children Flourish), Tears and Tantrums, Raising Drug-Free Kids, and Attachment Play. Her books have been translated into 13 languages, and The Aware Baby has sold over 150,000 copies worldwide. Dr. Solter studied with Dr. Jean Piaget in Switzerland before earning her Ph.D. in psychology at UCSB. She is recognized internationally as an expert on attachment, trauma, non-punitive discipline, and developmentally appropriate education. Dr. Solter has led workshops for parents and professionals in 17 countries.

Aware Parenting is a philosophy of child-rearing based on current research in the fields of attachment, child development, psychotherapy, cross-cultural studies, and the neurobiology of trauma. Aware Parenting questions most traditional assumptions about raising children, proposing a new approach that can significantly improve relationships within a family. Parents who follow this approach raise children who are cooperative, compassionate, competent, nonviolent and drug-free.

Our Counseling Center is looking for an additional volunteer clinical supervisor to facilitate group supervision. We are seeking someone who is dedicated to helping newer interns and trainees apply their education to their clinical practice. This would be a great fit for a mental health practitioner who has experience working in a nonprofit or institutional setting. If you are interested in volunteering 2 hours a week with our Counseling Center, we encourage you to contact us.

Do you need hours toward licensure? We welcome volunteer counseling interns, including MA, MSW and PsyD/PhD students and registered associates – especially interns bilingual in Spanish/English. We always have a client waiting list for services and plenty of hours available to count towards licensure.

For more information, please contact Crystal Ramirez, Clinical Director, at 805-963-7777 x125 or cramirez@sbnbcc.org.

New Beginnings’ Safe Parking Program has had an exciting 2018 thus far with broad media attention. The program had the privilege of working with the Steve Lopez of the Los Angeles Times, on a piece about the difficulty even working individuals have in finding affordable housing. Since then, the program has garnered the attention of several other media sources, including The Seattle Times, Angelus News, a Swedish newspaper, the French newspaper La Monde, and one of the most watched French television channels, France Télévisions. Along with various media, numerous other communities have shown interest in the program, and many are exploring ways to start a safe parking program in their own cities. San Diego, Los Angeles, Mountain View, Ventura, San Francisco, and Portland are among those that have either traveled to Santa Barbara to participate in a site visit with staff or have received technical assistance from staff over the phone. Safe Parking continues to sell its best practices manual so that other communities can learn how to best implement a program in their own region. The program was also recently able to successfully trademark the name Safe Parking Program.

Currently, Safe Parking has grown to 24 lots and 133 spaces spread out across Santa Barbara and Goleta. Program staff continue the important work of providing case management and rapid rehousing services to their 150+ clients. The case managers work individually with clients to make social service referrals, connect them with community resources, and create case management plans, all with the ultimate goal of working towards permanent, stable housing for all clients.

Improving Counseling Clinic Processes to Improve Our Client’s Experience

We continually ask, “How can we best serve the people coming to New Beginnings?” and “What can we do better?” We also want to know, “How can we be more efficient and make the jobs of our volunteers and staff more simple?” This year, we turned these questions toward our intake procedures at the counseling clinic.

In order to streamline our clinic processes and ensure research-based best practices we began an in-house study of intake procedures in August 2017. The study was conducted by Ron Nielsen, MA, a PsyD candidate of Antioch University. Ron is a former New Beginnings Counseling Center intern counselor and has continued to volunteer for several years analyzing outcome data and working on our database. The study evaluated two intake procedures that have been used at the counseling clinic at various times in our history, to determine what best suits the needs of our clients and increases efficiency for staff and volunteers.

We discovered that the most important variable in clients attending a first session and continuing counseling was having an appointment scheduled with a counselor at the time of first contact. This information propelled us to revamp our intake procedure so that clients can confirm an appointment when they first call, not in a few days or weeks when we have fully processed their request. New Beginnings will now be transitioning over to this new model. We are proud to contribute to the body of research in this area of the literature and grateful to our staff and volunteers that have endured this rigorous evaluation and process.
Along with the Supportive Services for Veterans Families program, Safe Parking staff members attended the national Housing First Partners Conference in Denver, Colorado in April. Staff spent four days at seminars and lectures from community leaders, program directors, staff, professors, and experts in the field - learning from other successful housing and homeless services programs and diving deeper into what it means to operate with a trauma-informed Housing First model. Safe Parking was a service provider exhibitor, answering questions from conference attendees and inspiring those interested in implementing the program. At the conference, New Beginnings debuted the Safe Parking Training Program aimed at helping guide other communities to start their own local program. Through the training program, committed community members and service providers can spend three days with New Beginnings’ Safe Parking staff learning about the program, including intake paperwork, case management, lot logistics, staffing, and community engagement. It is our sincere hope that the best practices manual coupled with the new training program will allow other communities to learn from Safe Parking and successfully implement a program of their own.
